

AFRICANA STUDIES

W.E.B. Du Bois Speaker Series Presents

Yveline Alexis

University of Massachusetts Amherst

“Liberalized Minds in an Occupied State:
Using Charlemagne Peralte's story in U.S. and Haiti's
Foreign Relations, 20th century”

Charlemagne Masséna Péralte

Thursday, September 16, 2010

3:30-4:30 P.M.

Richter Library – Third Floor Conference Room

Yveline Alexis has a B.A. in History and Africana Studies from Cornell University and a M.A. University of Massachusetts-Amherst. She has recently completed her Ph.D. at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst. She is the recipient of the Bauer-Gordon Research Fellowship, the Center for Latin American, Caribbean and Latino Studies Summer 2008 and Latino Studies Summer 2008 Pre-dissertation Research Award. Her fields of interests are: Caribbean and the African Diaspora, U.S./Latin American Relations, Civil and Women's Rights Movements, Diasporic Identities; Race and Resistance in Latin American/Caribbean and Women and Politics.

Sponsored by Africana Studies Program, the Center for Latin American Studies (CLAS), and the Haiti Research Group