

THE CENTER FOR LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES FILMS SERIES PRESENTS

LATIN AND LATINO AMERICA: DOCUMENTARIES BY STUDENTS

"Bocas on the Brink"

Directed by Gaby Loria and Joanna Suarez

Bocas del Toro, a sleepy archipelago off of Panama's coast, is quickly transforming itself into the "next Cancun," - but at what price?

Student reporters Gaby Loria and Joanna Suarez take a look into the tourism industry's cultural and environmental effects in that region.

■ ■ ■

"Immokalee: Hiding our Shame"

Directed by Melanie D'Andrea

Just two hours away from Miami exists Immokalee, a farming town that has become one of the worst cases of immigrant exploitation in the United States.

■ ■ ■

"Pablo: The Artist Within"

Produced by Ximena Aliaguila, Noah Debonis, Molly Dodge, and Ruben Saldana.

Pablo Hernández was born in Cuba, and he emigrated to the United States in 1980. Hernández is a talented artist and musician who has participated in numerous exhibitions over the years. He has been the recipient of numerous awards and commendations by various entities and organizations.

■ ■ ■

"Trapped in Antiquity: A Journey into Mayan Culture" By Rachel Ewy

In an increasingly globalized and modern world, the Maya Indians of the Yucatán Peninsula face the dilemma of searching for a new life in the cities, where they will lose their sense of tradition and identity, or stay in the villages where traditions are maintained but economic opportunity is almost non-existent.

■ ■ ■

MONDAY OCTOBER 19, 2009; 7 PM
CAS Wesley Gallery

For more information call (305) 284-1854 or email umclas@miami.edu
This event is FREE and OPEN to the public

Organicarte

CENTER FOR LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI