RESEARCH LUNCH SERIES

THE ROLE OF SOCIAL SKILLS AND NETWORKS IN THE FIGHT AGAINST POVERTY

Please join us for a Presentation by
Dr. Martin Valdivia
Senior Researcher, Grupo de Análisis para el Desarrollo (GRADE) Lima, Peru

Development economics devoted decades to addressing key market failures and made some progress in poverty reduction, but far from sufficient. With the help of behavioral sciences, the current development agenda addresses the individual. In his presentation, Dr. Valdivia argues that behavioral constraints affect the way the poor interact with markets, for example by taking them away from rational decision-making. The author presents some key examples of studies about entrepreneurship and financial inclusion that address such questions in the Latin American context.
