REL 101: Introduction to Religion - URome Students ONLY
Callender, H. Green, W. Green, Kling, Pals, Stampino, Walsh | Study Abroad

This course gives students an introductory exposure to various religions of the world as seen from the perspective of the academic study of religion. It takes an objective and non-sectarian approach and is intended to inform rather than to persuade. The course assumes that students are capable of understanding worldviews and value systems different from their own and that sympathetic exposure to such alternatives is both an integral part of a university education and an essential component of functioning as a responsible citizen of the 21st century.

REL 242: Religion in Revolutionary History
Pals | Online Course

Explores the pivotal role of religion in the revolutions that have shaped the modern Western world: the Puritan Revolt in 17th-century England, the American/French Revolutions of 1776 and 1789, and the Russian (Communist) Revolution of 1917.

REL 288: Chinese Religions
Ritzinger | TR 9:30AM - 10:45AM

Over the last generation, China has largely thrown off communist ideology, becoming an economic powerhouse that will shape the 21st century. Alongside economic growth has come a rediscovery and revitalization of its religious heritage. But what is this religious heritage? What makes it unique? What does it offer? And how does this heritage shape China's religious scene today? This course addresses these questions through a survey of Chinese religion focusing on the "Three Teachings"-Confucianism, Daoism, and Buddhism-as well as popular religion.

We will examine their development and mutual interaction, attending to their thought and practice as well as their historical and social context. Students will gain not only a familiarity with the religious traditions of China, but also cultivate their ability to think historically and to balance sympathetic and critical understanding.

REL 308: The Greco-Roman Context of Early Christianity
Walsh | TR 2:00PM - 3:15PM

This course will explore a range of first-century CE practices and texts that informed the lives of the people who we now call early Christians. Emphasis will be given to the historical, moral psychological, political, religious, rhetorical, archaeological and social contexts of early Christianity. From practices like animal sacrifice, to discourses on the role of the gods in human activity, we will consider what aspects of Greco-Roman religion Christianity adapted or rejected. We will also discuss how people conducted their daily lives, and how they understood larger issues such as how the body worked, the significance of gender, morality and philosophy and how these discourses are reflected in the early theology of the Jesus movement.

REL 351: Death and Dying
Walsh | TR 3:30PM - 4:45PM

For as long as we have documented history on the subject, human beings have debated issues about what it means to be mortal, what it means to live well, how to die well and whether death is truly the end of life. This course surveys discourses about death and death rituals from the ancient Mediterranean (ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome) to the present day. Some of the issues we will discuss include (but are not limited to): the history of certain perspectives on illness, death and burial; the relationship between organized religious systems and death and dying; personhood; theodicy; euthanasia; suicide; and the afterlife.

REL 362: The Sanctity of Life: Selected Themes from the Ancient World to the Present - URome Students ONLY
Callender, H. Green, W. Green, Kling, Pals, Stampino, Walsh | Study Abroad

This course examines the religious foundation of the idea that human life is “sacred” and considers a wide range of historical and ethical issues associated with this central concept of Western thought. It explores the meaning of the multi-faceted phrase “sanctity of life,” including its implications for such ethical and legal concerns as conception, birth, and termination of life; human dignity and human rights; the quality of life; and social justice. We will examine how “life” is defined and described in different cultures at different times in history, and how various religions have influenced these matters.

REL 406: Sacred Spaces
W. Green and D. Hector | T 5:45PM – 8:00PM

This course explores the intersections of religion and architecture. Through a close study of a global range of contemporary and historic religious buildings, it will ask if, how, and to what extent the sacred and architecture need one another. The course will be a discussion-based seminar.

REL 409: Human Rights in the Middle East: Refugees and Displacement
H. Green | M 3:00PM - 5:30PM

Over the last 70 years, millions of people have been displaced from North Africa and the Middle East: Copts (Egypt), Jews (from the Atlantic Ocean to the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers), Kurds and Yazidis in Iraq, and Syrians (Christian and Moslem). The course examines the reasons why these minorities and populations have been displaced. Highlighting the International Declaration of Human Rights ratified by the United Nations in the wake of the Holocaust (1951), the course also engages students in collecting and documenting the testimonies and stories of these refugees within South Florida. The narratives include life in their countries of origin, their story of leaving and their experience of resettling in a new country. Core themes such as transnational identity, exile, diaspora, migration and the “other” are central to the course. Internship opportunities for students are also available. The course is part of an international project, Sephardic Voices, and mirrors Spielberg’s Holocaust/Shoah Project but with an emphasis on non-Europeans and Islamic countries.”
